Call Two Recap & Notes · for Jennifer Johnson

Everything we cracked open.

STRONG LEADERS. WHOLE LIVES.

The full recap of our second call · newmorrow

From your strategist

WHAT A CALL.

You came in lit up and ready to build, and we covered a lot of ground in real flow.

This is your full recap. Not just what we decided, but the thinking underneath it: your marketing, your pricing, your offers and funnel, your method and content, your room, and your next steps. Keep it as your notes. None of it is homework to white-knuckle. It is a map. One step at a time.

This is yours, Jen. Built from your own words.
Andrea

THE DECISIONS, at a glance.

The headlines first. The thinking behind each one follows.

1 YOUR HERO OFFER IS BOARD OF ONE, YOUR 1:1.

The Leader Reset stays a back-pocket tool, not a public offer.

2 LEAD WITH THE 1:1. LET THE B2B FIND YOU.

One Category of One on top, the offers are pathways in.

3 YOUR MOVEMENT: STRONG LEADERS, WHOLE LIVES.

The rallying line, and it could even become the brand.

4 YOUR ROOM IS THE TABLE.

You gather women at thresholds so they stop crossing it alone.

5 THE REFRAME IS A CORE PART OF YOUR METHOD.

One meaty note of the Way, and a content pillar. Not the whole song.

6 “HEALER” IS OUT.

You are the trusted advisor, the bridge, the queen of the reframe.

7 YOU SPEAK TO POWER, NOT PAIN.

Desire-led, story-first. The detail is on the next page.

SPEAK TO POWER, not pain.

The single biggest shift in how you sell. You market to the expanded woman, not the wound.

PAIN-POINT MARKETING IS THE DEFAULT. IT IS NOT YOUR MOVE.

Most advice tells you to lead with the client's problem and position yourself as the expert with the fix. Ninety percent of the free advice out there says this. Trust your gut that it has always felt heavy. You can sprinkle pain in, intentionally, but never lead with it.

LEADING WITH PAIN ATTRACTS THE WRONG PEOPLE.

They over-identify with the pain and tip into a victim mindset. They hire you to fix them, resist implementing, and become the client who mentor-hops: this coach failed me, then the next one did too. They take ten times the energy and quietly drain you.

YOU SPEAK TO POWER INSTEAD.

Desire-led, pleasure-based. You speak to the most expanded version of a woman, even when her hope is a sliver. You either call up a woman who is stuck but empowered, or you meet one who is already there. Power to power. Partner, not rescue.

THIS IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A BUSINESS THAT FEEDS YOU AND ONE YOU DESPISE.

Power-to-power relationships give you life. And your outcomes are exponential, because these women soar instead of needing to be dragged.

THE HEAVY "FIX ME" WORK IS USUALLY THERAPY, NOT LEADERSHIP.

You are not a therapist. You hold the leader-to-leader conversation. Leading with pain also builds a hierarchy, you on a pedestal with the answer she lacks, and that adds pressure to every conversation.

STRETCHY, not stressy.

Get untangled from per-session math. One clear offer, one price, priced to value and access.

STOP BUILDING A CUSTOM PRICE FOR EVERY PERSON.

Session-by-session math is exhausting and turns every new lead into a negotiation and a decision. Move to one repeatable offer and one price.

PRICE TO THE VALUE AND THE ACCESS THAT GET THE RESULT, NOT YOUR HOURLY RATE.

Untangle from “she is not using the space, so should I charge less?” Different women use the container differently, and that is a moot point. Sometimes the ones who talk to you least soar the most.

THE MODEL THAT TENDS TO FEEL BEST.

A flat monthly rate for a set rhythm: a weekly call plus messaging access, Monday to Friday. Consider a three-weeks-on, one-week-off cycle so you both get room to breathe and implement.

USE A COMMITMENT, NOT A RENEWAL TREADMILL.

A four-month minimum, then it rolls month to month. You are not re-selling every month or at the end of a package. People stay, and it takes the pressure off both of you.

SET IT STRETCHY, NOT STRESSY.

The number lives between the price that is too easy to say and the one that makes you crumble. When you name it, you can hold the silence with a straight spine. If you collapse under it, even energetically, it is too high for now.

PRICING TOO HIGH MAKES YOU SABOTAGE THE SALE.

Counterintuitive but true. Too high and you stay paralyzed and do not sell for months. Name a number you can hold with zero crumble for the next few clients, build the confidence, then baby-step it up, two hundred or five hundred at a time, as demand and confidence grow.

UNDER-PROMISE, OVER-DELIVER ON ACCESS.

With high-caliber women it is a luxury market. They want the buffet even if they do not eat every dish. It feels good to know you are there, and they know the cost of not having someone in their corner when the moment comes.

DECIDE IT FROM TWO QUESTIONS, MARRIED TOGETHER.

What level of access does she actually need to get the result, and what feels genuinely fun and sustainable for you to deliver? The answer is in between. And you keep your agency: if someone you love working with needs a stripped-down version, you can quietly offer it.

ONE FLAGSHIP, and an application that does the work.

How people actually come into your world, without you crafting the perfect offer every time.

BOARD OF ONE IS YOUR FLAGSHIP 1:1.

Your big-kahuna offer. Lead with it, especially when you are excited about someone. A private board member, one trusted advisor in your corner. Power to power.

THE LEADER RESET IS A TOOL, NOT A PUBLIC OFFER.

Use the six weeks as a trial run when you are not ready to commit to four months with someone, or as a gentle down-sell for a woman not ready for the larger investment. It works behind the scenes, never the public lead.

DO NOT SELL OFFERS DIRECTLY OFF A PAGE. USE AN APPLICATION.

People apply to work with you, a simple Google form. It filters out the not-serious and opens a conversation. The energy is “flirt, just apply, let’s see what happens.” It removes the pressure of crafting a perfect offer someone says yes to on the spot.

YOU DECIDE AFTER THEY APPLY.

Once they apply, you have the conversation and choose which offer to invite them into, Board of One or the Reset. You stay in your authority the whole time.

YOU DO NOT NEED A FULL WEBSITE YET.

A landing page for the 1:1 is plenty. You can build it in Claude: upload your messaging and photos, ask for a page designed to convert, link the application. A website is just landing pages woven together, and your social presence is effectively your website.

THE FREE-COACHING SEASON DID ITS JOB.

Every person you coached for free asked to continue, and to pay. That is your proof. You are ready to charge.

THE REFRAME, THE STORY, the metaphor.

The reframe is a core part of your method, and story is how all of it travels.

THE REFRAME IS ONE PART OF YOUR METHOD, NOT THE WHOLE.

We will map your full process in the deeper work. The move: meet someone in the dense, heavy minutia of reality, sit in the hard truth so it has a pulse, move them to neutral, then open the pathway to possibility.

YOU FLEX IT.

Sometimes you ask, “do you want to reframe here, or do you need to stay in it a while first?” The reframe holds both. It honors what is, then alchemizes it. You do not pretend, you do not shame, and you do not let anyone stay stuck.

LEAD WITH STORY, NOT THE CONCEPT.

Hook, story, then the punchline. Do not lead with “become the queen of the reframe,” that stays cerebral and gets filed away. Make someone feel something so it lands in the body and they remember it the next time they are stuck.

YOUR OWN LIFE IS YOUR CONTENT.

Notice the small moments. An email creates an overwhelm you alchemize in twelve hours, and there is a story with a clear before and after. This becomes your intentional lens for showing up.

PLAY WITH YOUR DEFINING METAPHOR.

The visceral image for the transformation. “Nervous system regulation” becomes “the chill rocket ship.” “Run Facebook ads” becomes “online sign spinner.” “Nervous to try” became “a fun adventure.” A defining metaphor is a purple cow in itself. It sets you apart and lets people see the change.

VOICE.

Speak to power. Be declarative. Keep warmth and edge together. Keep the woo grounded and plainspoken. You have, in your words, rich resting bitch face, let the writing carry that calm, knowing authority.

THE VIBE, THE TESTIMONIALS, and where to show up.

THE VIBE OF YOUR ROOM: COME AS YOU ARE.

The opposite of the buttoned-up boardroom. Calm, relaxed, accepted, the performance set down, and still high impact through real conversation. You are already building it in person. You call it The Table.

USE YOUR TESTIMONIALS, AND CURATE THEM.

Pull the lines that hit the pillars: felt deeply heard, designing my dream career, who I am becoming, the thoroughness of your recaps, support accelerates me. Your session recaps being a standout is a corporate strength you kept, and it is a gift.

GO AFTER VIDEO, WITH STRUCTURE.

Pursue video testimonials when the relationship is right. Give people specific questions so you get something meaty, not fluff. Get permission, and name or title them where you can. It is far stronger than anonymous.

GET COMFORTABLE ON INSTAGRAM.

You will work with strangers eventually, and your network only takes you so far. Play there while the audience is small, that is freedom. You do not pitch, you flirt: like, engage, support the women you would love to work with.

LEAN ON LINKEDIN TOO.

That is where your already-bought-in audience lives. Use both, shaped a little differently for each. Make your Instagram public and front-facing, a handle closer to your name, a bio pulled from this brand work.

WHAT TO DO next.

Short and ordered, so you leave with momentum, not eighty open tabs.

1 CLAIM YOUR ONE-ON-ONE OFFER.

Lock the deliverables and one clear monthly price. A flat monthly rate, a weekly call, messaging access between calls, a four-month commit that rolls month to month. Price it stretchy, not stressy.

2 BRAND IT BOARD OF ONE.

Have fun with the messaging. The fun name out front, the plain details underneath.

3 BUILD A SIMPLE LANDING PAGE AND AN APPLICATION.

Build the page in Claude. Keep the application a Google form. People apply, then you have the conversation. Flirt, don't pitch.

4 KEEP THE LEADER RESET IN YOUR BACK POCKET.

A trial run or a gentle down-sell, offered behind the scenes when it fits.

5 START YOUR EMAIL LIST WITH A FREE LEAD MAGNET.

A quiz or assessment like "Are you leading, or overriding?" It qualifies the right people, opens conversations, and hands you market research.

6 MAKE INSTAGRAM PUBLIC AND FRONT-FACING.

A handle closer to your name, a clear bio. Play with a small audience, lean on LinkedIn for the people already bought in. Both.

7 START POSTING FROM THIS BRAND.

Small nuggets: your story, what you stand for, who it is for. Lead with story. Play with your defining metaphor.

The resources I promised.

YOUR BRAND BIBLE.

The live page and the PDF, your source of truth. Everything else gets built from it.

THE TESTIMONIAL QUESTION FORM.

Structured prompts so clients give you meaty, usable words. Start from mine: forms.gle/FUomgGfPW5z4HLoM8

THE APPLICATION TEMPLATE.

The FemmeQUARTERS application, questions to filter and flirt. Start from mine: forms.gle/5dhwoG6xKKMGrm8W7

THIS RECAP.

Everything we covered, so you don't have to hold it all in your head.

Let's keep going. When you have sat with it, grab a time and we will sharpen the next layer together.
